

April 15, 2018 3rd Sunday of Easter

Last Sunday, we began a series of reflections on the baptismal promises that we all renewed on Easter Sunday. We first considered how our renunciation of sin opens us to the freedom that comes from living as God's children. Saying no to those things which are sinful is not a restriction of our freedom, as it sometimes seems. Rather, it gives us a freedom for doing the things we should be doing, namely loving God and one another in the appropriate ways that are life giving instead of life draining.

The next baptismal promise we were asked to renew was this: "Do you renounce the lure of evil, so that sin may have no mastery over you?" When I hear the word 'lure', I think back to the many hours I spent fishing on the lake close to where my parents lived in Central Wisconsin. I had a couple of fishing lures that seemed like magic – they could catch just about anything! Once the hook was set, all I needed to do was wear the fish out and bring him into the boat (after which I always released him).

Think about that analogy. Sometimes evil or sinful things are presented to us as appealing and attractive, like a nice shiny fishing lure. We fall for the trap and go for it, only to find ourselves getting hooked! Initially, we might put up a good fight, trying to break free. Then, after a period of struggle, we resign ourselves to the fact that there's little or nothing that we can do, so we give up the fight and continue to get pulled further in.

Therefore, we need to renew our resolve to do everything that we cannot just to avoid sin, but also the near occasions of sin. For example, if you know that using social media on your phone causes you to procrastinate, delete the app from your phone! And if you find yourself getting hooked by something, don't trust in your strength to fight the battle with the hopes that you will 'spit the hook out' with enough effort. By all means, bring it to confession, which cuts the line and gives you your freedom back. The sooner you go, the less drained you will be from the battle and better able to resist the lure of evil and sin when it tries to present itself as an attraction again.

PSR registration forms have been sent out and the pre-registration dates are April 25th, April 29th, May 2nd, and May 6th. By registering early, you will help us have a good start in figuring out next year's classes. We will still have Wednesday evening classes just like this year. How many Sunday classes will depend on the number of children pre-registered for each class. We will make the determination about the number of Sunday classes after Sunday, May 13th.

Please help us to prepare by registering early!
